

Aleksi Knepp

University of Illinois, B.S. Agricultural and Consumer Economics, 2022

University of Illinois, M.S. Agricultural and Applied Economics, 2023

Aleksi Knepp is a legislative assistant in the Office of U.S. Congresswoman Nikki Budzinski. Aleksi's portfolio covers agriculture, cryptocurrency, science, technology, AI, water, army corps, education, housing, financial services, banking, and tax. Aleksi would describe herself as an agricultural policy enthusiast.

Aleksi graduated with both her B.S. in Agricultural and Consumer Economics and M.S. in Agricultural and Applied Economics from the University of Illinois. During her time as a student, she was heavily involved in departmental and college-level activities and organizations. She served as an ACE Ambassador, teaching assistant, research assistant, and more. She also contributed to several farmdoc Daily articles. Aleksi is passionate about all things Illinois and ACE is and is eager to stay involved as an alumna.